FRIDAY MAY 5, 1893. An Extra Session of Congress.

If the President would make it known that he intends soon to convene Congress in extra session for the purpose of affording that body an oppor-tunity to legislate upon the currency question and the tariff question that and the government would less nothing by it. would be something upon which to hang a hope for an improved state of the peo-

It is true that the Administration cannot beast that it has Congress at its back; but it is also true that a policy of aimost any kind is better than no policy at all. the wiseacres who have been clamoring for free trade and who talk in their own way about carrying out the "orders issued by the American people last fall will find that although the Democrats will tariff revision and currency tinkering. So. the President need not fear to call Consilver-coinage, and a large issue of irredeemable greenbacks must have learned during the last two weeks that nobody can forecast the "behavior" of silver, gold, greenbacks, bonds, stocks, &c. te., so long as such conditions shall obtain as those which now disturb all

Because of the fact just stated Congress ought to be convened in extra session. I cannot be convened too soon. Let the people have something ahead of them upon which to base the expectation that the business interests of the country are to be looked after by the Democratic party. The 1st of September would no be too seen for Congress to begin the work which will be expected at its hands. The people will, of course, not know what that ody is going to do, but they will never theless feel much less uneasy than the

We say the President need not hesitate to call an extra session of Congress. He holds in his hands the veto power. We do not fear that the next Congress is going play the role of JACE CADE. But if that body should send any unwise bills to Mr. CLEVELAND for his approval he can easily crush the life out of them. As he has al ready said, he will not hesitate to use al the powers which the Constitution has placed in his hands to pro-tect the credit of the nation and the best interests of the people. With gress in Washington ready to correct a a moment's notice any blunders with which hasty legislation might be charge able, the people might dismiss their ap prehensions as to dangers supposed to be threatening the country and take up their regular business full of hope and confi-

South Carolina and the Funeral Train-In a letter written to General TROMAS A. BRANDER, of this city, and which has been published in some of the South Carolina the Richmond authorities giving the capi-tal of South Carolina "the go-by" with the JEFFERSON DAVIS funeral train.

If anybody is to blame it is Governor Tillman. Weeks and weeks ago the Governors of Alabama, Georgia, and North Carolina made requests of the Davis-Monument Association to have the funeral train stopped at their capitals facts which all newspapers published-but not a word was heard from the Governor of South Carolina. Although he attended the meeting of Governors in Richmond, and was daily in the company of the president of the Davis-Monument Association, he did not once extend an invitation to the association to stop the train at Columbia. After waiting a good while in order to re ceive suggestions from all sections of the South, and after postponing the day of interment one day, the better to make stope, the Monument Association on April 19th made up and published all over th South the schedule. Not till ten days after this was Governor TILLMAN heard from. Now he is too late, for it would be wellnigh impossible to make new arrange ments to include Columbia.

Our South Carolina brethren must not permit themselves to believe that any one in Richmond has been wanting in consideration for that noble State. The should rather hold responsible those whose duty it was to extend an invitation and neglected to do it. The only request which came from South Carolina was from Greenville, It happens, however, that the train arrives there late at night; nevertheless, the citizens asked that stop be made there, and this was promptly agreed to. A stop will be made there. So in no sense whatsoever is it true that South Carolina is to be given "the go-by."

Flurry Among Speculators. There were a number of failures of speculative firms in New York yesterday. Perhaps they have been dosed with their own medicine. They are of the fellows who get up scares to pull down other people, and it sometimes happens that they bring punishment upon themselves. Too often they bring it upon innocent persons

Whilst the controversy about the curzency is going on and new tariff legislation is being talked about it is to be expected that business-men will exercise caution in their transactions; but there is no excuse for alarm, and it is to be hoped that all who contribute to a disturbed feeling will be made to suffer.

It may be depended upon that all that the Administration can and should do will be done to prevent Wall street from further injuring the business of the country. The New York banks are in a sound condition-indeed, have fortified themselves for an emergency-and are disposed to pursue a conservative course. The same may be said of the Richmond banks, and luckily, too, for us. our brokers are not gamblers, as so many of those in New

As for what it (the Disparch) says in the matter of forgory—the forgor of a $1,000 note puts out something which is simply worthless. But the man who puts out a silver deliar that contains 371ki grains of pure silver puts out a coin that is just as good in every respect as the silver deliar put out by the government.—Times.

Just so. The man who counterfeits a note for $1,000 puts out something which note for $1,000 puts out something which is simply worthless, and thus makes $1,000 as easily as he could make $1 by forging a silver dollar. But it strikes us that the Times thus states a fact which belongs to our side of the question—a fact, too, which tells the Times why the work of counterfeiting silver dollars does not go on to the extent to which, according to our neighbor's theories, it ought to go on.

communication from Charlottesville published in the New York Morning Advertiser of Tuesday the claim is made that JEFFERSON M. LEVY, Esq., of Monticello, probably did as much as any one man in the country to keep Mr. CLEVE-LAND before the country from 1888 to 1892 and to secure his re-election.

The various services ascribed to Man Lzvy are fully set forth in the letter. Among other things it is set forth that "be was the foremost CLEVELAND man in Virginia," and the writer here quoted believes that "the day will come when Mr. LEVY's services will be recognized by the people of the United States."

The Girls Were Not There.

What appears to be a bold piece of awinding has just come to light here. A few days ago a lady who claimed to be a stater of Rev. Dr. John Hall, the noted New York divine, visited Mis Gussto Daniel, proprieteres of a inshionable school for girls in this city, and told this story. She was in Norfolk with her two wards when she received a telegram to come at once to California, whate her husband was dangerously ill. Miss Daniel had been recommended as a good person in whose care to leave her wards while she was one West, and she was willing to pay well for the task of looking after the two girls whise Daniel flushly consented to take charge of the stranger's wards, and it was arranged that ehe should ge to Nerfolk for them. The stranger bade farewell to her newly-found friend and left, saying she would take the next train for the West. It was not long before she came back to Miss Daniel in all the pocket had been picked of all the money sha had with her. Miss Daniel in the pocket had been picked of all the money sha had with her. Miss Daniel in the result went to the result was not long before the west of the Norfolk, and one may well imagine her surprise when she called at the address given and accertained that the wo girls were not there, as the stranger had stated, nor did any one there know anything of the woman. Efforts have been made to ascertain something about this bold stranger, but not a clue to her identity has been secured.
